DECLARATION OF PETER G. FARRELL

PETER G. FARRELL, an attorney duly admitted to practice in the United States District Court for the District of New Jersey, declares under penalty of perjury and pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1746 that the following statements are true and correct:

1. I am a Senior Counsel in the office of MICHAEL A. CARDOZO, Corporation Counsel of the City of New York, attorney for the defendant. I am familiar with the facts and circumstances stated herein based upon personal knowledge and submit this declaration in support of Defendant’s Motion to Dismiss the First Amended Complaint with prejudice pursuant to Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 12(b)(1) and 12(b)(6).

2. Annexed hereto as Exhibit A is a true and accurate copy of the First Amended Complaint dated October 3, 2012.

3. The documents about which plaintiffs refer to in their First Amended Complaint were the subject of a series of articles by the Associated Press (“AP”). The AP also released the documents to the public at large beginning in or about August 2011. For example, the “Newark report” referred to in the First Amended Complaint beginning in ¶5 was a document released to the public by the AP. The AP released the Newark report, for example, without redacting the names or addresses of the entities therein.

4. In May of 2012, the office of the Attorney General of New Jersey issued a press release related to the subject matter of the articles written by the Associated Press and the corresponding documents released by the AP. Annexed hereto as Exhibit B is a true and accurate copy of a press release from the Office of the Attorney General dated May 24, 2012 titled “Office of the Attorney General Takes Steps to Address Out-of-State Law Enforcement Activity in New Jersey Following Fact-Finding Review.” The press release states that a fact finding review has “revealed no evidence to date that the NYPD’s activities in the state violated New Jersey civil or criminal laws.”

5. The First Amended Complaint refers to a 2006 report regarding a Danish artist’s cartoons of the Prophet Muhammad. Annexed hereto as Exhibit C are true and accurate copies of news articles from The New York Times titled (i) “Temperatures Rise Over Cartoons Mocking Muhammad” dated February 3, 2006; (ii) “Italian Quits Over Cartoons; 15 Die in Nigeria” dated February 19, 2006; (iii) “2 Die as Pakistan Cartoon Rage Turns Violent” dated February 15, 2006; (iv) and an article from The Washington Post titled “Cartoons of Prophet Met With Outrage” dated January 31, 2006.

Plaintiffs,

Jury Trial Demanded

v.

THE CITY OF NEW YORK,

Defendant.

FIRST AMENDED COMPLAINT

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

1. This is a civil rights action based upon the United States Constitution and 42 U.S.C. § 1983, to remedy the illegal and unconstitutional targeting of New Jersey Muslims for surveillance based solely upon their religion by the New York City Police Department (“NYPD” or “Department”). Plaintiffs seek an injunction prohibiting the NYPD from targeting them for unconstitutional surveillance, expungement of all records made pursuant to past unlawful spying, a declaratory judgment, and compensatory and nominal damages.

2. In early 2002, the NYPD began a secret spying program (“Program”) to infiltrate and monitor Muslim life in and around New York City. In all its years of operation, the Program has never generated a single lead.

3. The Department has focused, in particular, upon New Jersey Muslims. It has conducted surveillance of at least twenty mosques, fourteen restaurants, eleven retail stores, two grade schools and two Muslim Student Associations, in addition to an untold number of individuals who own, operate, and visit those establishments. The thoroughness and precision of the Department’s surveillance is reflected in its creation of more than twenty precinct-level maps of the City of Newark, noting the location of mosques and Muslim businesses and the ethnic composition of the Muslim community.

4. As part of the Program, the NYPD takes photographs and videos and collects license plate numbers at mosques. The Department also utilizes undercover officers and informants to infiltrate and surveil Muslim communities, including mosques, Muslim Student Associations, and Muslim-owned businesses. Upon information and belief, the NYPD Program has not undertaken such surveillance with respect to non-Muslim communities in New Jersey.

5. The NYPD has created a series of reports documenting in detail the information obtained from its surveillance of New Jersey Muslim communities through its surveillance Program, including a report focusing on the Muslim community in Newark (“Newark report”). Plaintiffs include mosques, the national umbrella Muslim student association, Muslim-owned businesses, and the principal of an Islamic school for girls, that were identified in these reports, as well as associations whose members were identified in these reports. Plaintiffs also include individual members of New Jersey mosques and Muslim Student Associations that were identified in the NYPD reports as subjects of the surveillance Program.

6. The NYPD Program is founded and operated upon a false and constitutionally impermissible premise: that Muslim religious identity is a legitimate criterion for selection of law enforcement surveillance targets, or that it is a permissible proxy for criminality, and that Muslim individuals, businesses, and institutions can therefore be subject to pervasive surveillance not visited upon individuals, businesses, and institutions of any other religious faith or the public at large.

7. Through the Program, the NYPD impermissibly discriminates on the basis of religion and singles out Plaintiffs for unfavorable and unequal treatment by police. By targeting Muslim entities and individuals in New Jersey for investigation solely because they are Muslim or believed to be Muslim, the Program casts an unwarranted shadow of suspicion and stigma on Plaintiffs and, indeed, all New Jersey Muslims. Each Plaintiff has suffered from the stigmatization that results from being singled out for surveillance on the basis of their religious beliefs, which is a harm that invites additional prejudice and discrimination against them and all American Muslims.

8. Plaintiffs bring this lawsuit in order to affirm the principle that individuals may not be singled out for intrusive investigation and pervasive surveillance that cause them continuing harm simply because they profess a certain faith.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

9. The Court possesses jurisdiction to hear this matter pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1331 because it alleges violations of the United States Constitution and 42 U.S.C. § 1983, and therefore raises questions of federal law. Jurisdiction is also based upon 28 U.S.C. § 1343 because relief is sought for the deprivation of Plaintiffs' constitutional rights under color of State law.

10. Venue is proper in the District of New Jersey under 28 U.S.C. § 1391(b) because a substantial part of the events or omissions giving rise to the claims herein occurred in this District.

PARTIES

Plaintiffs

11. Syed Farhaj Hassan is a New Jersey resident and a Soldier in a Civil Affairs Brigade who has served in the United States Army Reserves since September 2001. He is thirty-five years old and a U.S. Citizen. Hassan has served in Iraq (fourteen months of active duty and deployment to Iraq), during which time he worked in military intelligence, and has received numerous honors for his service, including the Army Service Ribbon, Global War on Terrorism Expeditionary Ribbon, National Defense Ribbon, Iraq Campaign Medal, Good Conduct Medal, three Army Commendation Medals, Army Achievement Medal, and Combat Action Badge. His address is 2403 Candlelight Court, Helmetta, NJ 08828.

12. Hassan is an observant Shi'a Muslim who attends mosque regularly. He has attended the Astaana-e-Zehra mosque most Fridays for the last two years and has been a congregant for 16 years. He also worships and attends events at the Masjid-e-Ali mosque approximately ten times per year, the Mehfile Shahe Khorasan mosque approximately four times per year, and the Imam-e-Zamana Foundation of North America mosque approximately twice per year. Each of these mosques is located in New Jersey and was identified in the NYPD reports as a subject of the NYPD surveillance Program.

13. Hassan has been unfairly targeted and stigmatized by the NYPD's surveillance of his mosques as part of a program targeting Muslim organizations. He has decreased his mosque attendance significantly since learning that the mosques he attends have been under surveillance by the NYPD because he has a reasonable and well-founded fear that that his security clearance would be jeopardized by being closely affiliated with mosques under surveillance by law enforcement. Any blemish in his background check jeopardizes his security clearance and thus his career. Hassan is also concerned that his fellow soldiers, including his superiors, will have diminished trust in him and treat him differently – thereby harming his career prospects – if they learn he is a regular congregant at mosques under NYPD surveillance. He believes, reasonably, that if he decreases his attendance, he is less likely to be seen and/or recorded at the mosques.

14. The Council of Imams in New Jersey (“Council” or “CINJ”) is a non-profit corporation organized under the law of New Jersey and based in the Newark area. Its address is 62-70 Howard Street, Irvington, NJ 07111. Among other things, the Council is formed to conduct what is called Mutual Consultation (“Shuraa Baynahum”) for the purpose of establishing a whole and balanced society and facilitating the current and future circumstances that shape the continuous improvement of the Muslim Community. The Council is a membership organization comprising a dozen New Jersey mosques, at least two of which, Masjid al-Haqq and Masjid Ali K. Muslim, have been surveilled as part of the NYPD’s Program in New Jersey. Photographs and descriptions of both of these mosques are included in the Department’s Newark report.

15. Masjid al-Haqq and Masjid Ali K. Muslim have been a part of the Newark community for thirty and over forty years, respectively. Leaders and congregants in both mosques have been unfairly targeted and stigmatized by the NYPD’s surveillance of their mosques as part of a program targeting Muslim organizations. Both mosques have also seen a decline in attendance and contributions as a result of the Department's surveillance. Losses in attendance and financial support that followed the disclosure of the Program targeting Muslims have directly harmed both mosques' ability to fulfill their religious missions.

16. Muslim Students Association of the U.S. & Canada, Inc. ("MSA National") is a non-profit corporation organized under the law of Indiana, based at 6555 South 750 East, Plainfield, IN 46168. MSA National serves Muslim students during their college and university careers by facilitating their efforts to establish, maintain and develop local MSA chapters. It strives to facilitate networking, educating and empowering the students of today to be citizens of tomorrow's community. To achieve its objectives, MSA National develops tools and resources to facilitate information sharing and to unite students across North America.

17. Two of MSA National's members, the Muslim Student Associations for the Rutgers University campuses at Newark and New Brunswick, were subject to surveillance in New Jersey through the NYPD Program. These MSAs were singled out for surveillance by the NYPD simply because their membership is made up of Muslim students. Student organizations affiliated with other religious denominations were not subject to similar surveillance. Such biased police spying invites additional discrimination and prejudice against all current and former MSA students and diminishes the MSAs' ability to fulfill their spiritual and practical missions. As affinity student groups, MSAs subject to surveillance of their activities and discussions are diminished in their ability to establish viable student organizations that students will feel secure joining and participating in. Their ability to embark upon integral partnerships with campus administrators and other organizations and fulfill the spiritual needs of their members in a confidential manner is also impaired.

18. All Body Shop Inside & Outside is a New Jersey corporation that owns and operates a retail store and cafe in downtown Newark (20 Branford Place, Newark, NJ 07102). The store was founded in 1998. Its owners, Gary Abdul Karim Abdullah and Hamidah Z. Abdullah, are Muslims who have lived and worked in the Newark community for their entire lives. All Body Shop Inside & Outside was identified in an NYPD report as “Hamidah’s Body Shop” and was subject to surveillance as part of the NYPD Program.

19. The owners of All Body Shop Inside & Outside have been unfairly targeted and stigmatized by the NYPD’s surveillance of their business as part of a program targeting Muslim organizations. The NYPD’s Program has also harmed their business by scaring away customers. A photograph and description of their store is included in the NYPD’s Newark report, which has been widely publicized. Since people learned that All Body Shop Inside & Outside was under NYPD surveillance, the number of customers visiting the store has decreased and some customers have told the owners by telephone that they did not feel comfortable visiting the location because of the threat of NYPD surveillance.

20. Unity Beef Sausage Company (“Unity”) is a New Jersey corporation that owns and operates Unity Brand Halal Products, Inc., a halal meat store in downtown Newark (94 Orange Street, Newark, New Jersey 07102). It has a store for retail and wholesale and a building for manufacturing. Founded in 1968, Unity is owned by Akbar Salaam, who is Muslim. Unity was surveilled as part of the NYPD Program in New Jersey, and a photograph and description of the Unity store appears in the NYPD's Newark report, which has been widely publicized.

21. Unity's owner, his employees, and his customers have been unfairly targeted and stigmatized by the surveillance of Unity as part of a program targeting Muslim organizations. The NYPD surveillance has also hurt business at the Unity halal meat store. Many regular customers have not been coming to the store since the NYPD's Newark report was made public. For example, the store typically experiences a rush of business after Friday prayer services, when many Newark area Muslims do food shopping and run errands. That rush slowed considerably immediately after the Newark report became public. Some customers have called to ask the owner about the NYPD's surveillance and told him they are no longer comfortable visiting the store. The store's owner now fears conducting his legitimate business; he is concerned that anyone who comes in or looks at him from across the street might be an NYPD spy.

22. Muslim Foundation Inc. ("MFI") is a New Jersey non-profit corporation that owns and operates the Masjid-e-Ali mosque, located at 47 Cedar Grove Lane, Somerset, NJ, 08873. MFI's congregation comprises approximately 250 families. The Masjid-e-Ali mosque was surveilled as part of the NYPD's Program in New Jersey, and was identified in an NYPD report as a subject of surveillance.

23. Leaders and congregants in MFI have been unfairly targeted and stigmatized by the NYPD's surveillance of their mosque as part of a program targeting Shi'a Muslim organizations. The NYPD's surveillance of the mosque, and its inclusion in an NYPD report casts an unwarranted cloud of suspicion upon the mosque and its membership. MFI has also changed its religious services and programming as a direct result of the NYPD surveillance. Prior to learning that it had been surveilled by the NYPD, the mosque hosted a variety of visiting Islamic scholars and religious authorities to provide guidance to the congregation on how to conduct their daily lives in accordance with religious laws. These discussions are integral to MFI's religious mission, which includes promoting the lives of its congregants in accordance with divine laws, fellowship, and religious discourse. After learning that it had been targeted for surveillance, MFI decided not to invite otherwise amenable religious authorities who might nevertheless be perceived to be controversial because of their previous spiritual or religious training in Iran, views on or history of vocalizing religious edicts aligned with certain prominent centers of learning in Shi'a Islam, or their opinions on the proper role of the Islamic faith and scholarship in the daily lives of adherent Muslims; MFI's leaders reasonably feared that the views of such religious authorities and guides would be attributed to the mosque's membership. As a result, MFI's ability to fulfill its religious mission has been harmed.

24. Moiz Mohammed is a New Jersey resident (22 Woodbridge Street, New Brunswick, NJ 08901) currently enrolled as a full-time student at Rutgers New Brunswick, where he is pursuing a degree in Molecular Biology and Biochemistry. He is currently a junior and has been active in the Muslim Students Association (MSA) since his freshman year. The Rutgers New Brunswick MSA was surveilled as part of the NYPD's Program in New Jersey, and was identified in an NYPD report as a subject of surveillance.

25. Mohammed has been unfairly targeted, and stigmatized by the NYPD's surveillance of his MSA as part of a program targeting Muslim organizations. The NYPD's surveillance of his MSA unfairly targets him and other Muslim students. Members of other religious groups are not subjected to such surveillance and monitoring. The stigma now attached to being a Muslim member of the MSA has caused Mohammed to avoid discussing his faith or his MSA participation in public and to avoid praying in places where non-Muslims might see him doing so. Thus, Mohammed bears the burden of being discriminated against by the government, solely on account of his religion, which sends a signal that he is a less worthy member of the political community.

26. Jane Doe is a New Jersey resident currently enrolled as a full-time student at Rutgers New Brunswick in her junior year and is active in the Muslim Students Association. She will be moving the Court for leave to proceed under pseudonym after counsel for Plaintiffs confers with counsel for Defendant.

27. Doe suffers the same stigma as Mohammed as a result of the NYPD's surveillance of the activities of Muslim students on campus. She experiences this stigma in a variety of ways. For instance, she no longer discusses religious topics at MSA meetings, such as the differences between Sunni and Shi'a Islam, because of a reasonable fear that such discussions would be misunderstood and taken out of context by those suspicious of her religion.

She also has a reasonable fear that her discussions with other students and other participation in MSA activities may be observed by NYPD and taken out of context, resulting in unwarranted scrutiny premised solely on her Muslim faith and participation in religious discourse.

28. Soofia Tahir is a New Jersey resident (56 Southside Avenue, Somerville, NJ 08876) who was a member of the Rutgers Newark MSA during the 2003-2004 school year. She then attended Rutgers University's New Brunswick campus as an undergraduate from 2004 through 2008, and graduated with a bachelor's degree. She was a member of the Rutgers New Brunswick MSA during those years and served as its Vice President during the 2006-2007 school year. Tahir went on to attend graduate school at the Rutgers New Brunswick campus from 2010 through 2012, and graduated with a master's degree.

29. Like Mohammed and Doe, Tahir has been unfairly targeted, and stigmatized by the NYPD's surveillance of the Rutgers MSAs in a way that is likely to endanger her future educational and employment opportunities. In particular, she focused her graduate studies on international social work, a field in which many employment opportunities are with governmental or non-governmental agencies that require background checks and/or security clearance. She reasonably fears that her membership and leadership in organizations that have been surveilled by the NYPD as part of a program it describes as focused on "threats" and an attempt to document the "likely whereabouts of terrorists" will adversely affect her future job prospects and any further educational pursuits.

30. The revelation of the NYPD's spying on Muslims in New Brunswick and at Rutgers also caused Tahir to change the way she prayed and limit her conversations with others on certain topics. She curtailed discussions of religious and political topics while on the Rutgers campus out of a reasonable fear that NYPD informants or undercover officers might be eavesdropping and misconstrue what she said. She avoided religious and political topics rather than be subject to law enforcement scrutiny. Tahir also went to pray in very remote areas of the buildings in which she studied and worked on campus in order to try to avoid NYPD surveillance because of the uniquely visible way in which Muslims pray. On occasion, she would also go to work early in the morning so she could leave earlier in the day and do her mid-afternoon prayer at home, thereby reducing the Department's ability to surveil and scrutinize her worship.

31. Zaimah Abdur-Rahim resides at 35 Finlay Place, Newark, NJ 07106. She is currently a math teacher at Al Hidaayah Academy ("AHA"), a position she has held since 2010. A record of the NYPD's surveillance of AHA appears in the Newark report, which includes a photograph and description of the school. Abdur-Rahim was also the principal of Al Muslmaat Academy ("AMA"), a school for girls grades five through twelve, from 2002 through 2010. Like AHA, a record of the NYPD's surveillance of AMA appears in the Newark report, including a photograph, the address, and notations stating, among other things, that the school was located in a private house and that the ethnic composition of the school was African American.

32. Abdur-Rahim has been unfairly targeted and stigmatized by the NYPD's surveillance of AHA, where she is currently employed, and AMA, where she was last employed, as part of the Department's program targeting Muslim organizations. She reasonably fears that her future employment prospects are diminished by working at two schools under surveillance by law enforcement. Moreover, the Newark report's photograph of AMA is also Abdur-Rahim's home, where she has lived since 1993 with her husband and, at various times, her children and grandchildren. The fact that a photograph of her home appears on the internet in connection with the NYPD's surveillance program that the City of New York has since publicly exclaimed is necessary for public safety, has decreased the value of the home and diminished the prospects for sale of the home.

33. Abdur-Rahim is especially concerned with the Department's spying on AMA, because she and the all-female population of students there did not wear head coverings while attending classes. One of Abdur-Rahim's and her students' most sacred religious tenets is modesty, their practice of which requires them to always keep their heads covered in the presence of men or boys. If NYPD officers entered the property surrounding the school and looked inside – for example to determine that it was attended by African Americans as reported – they would be violating this religious tenet.

34. Abdul-Hakim Abdullah is married to Abdur-Rahim and co-owns the 35 Finlay Place home with her. He also served on the Board of Directors of Al Muslima from 2002 through 2010. Abdullah has suffered the same harm as Abdur-Rahim in connection with a decrease in the value of his home caused by the NYPD's surveillance and subsequent statements by Department officials.

Defendant

35. The City of New York is a municipal corporation duly incorporated and existing pursuant to the laws of the State of New York and having its principal offices at City Hall, New York, NY 10007. The City of New York has established and maintains the NYPD as a constituent department or agency. The NYPD acts as the City of New York's agent in the area of law enforcement. The NYPD's operations include the activities described herein.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

The NYPD Program Intentionally Targets Muslims for Surveillance on the Basis of Religion

36. In January 2002, the NYPD created a secret spying program to analyze and surveil the Muslim community in New York City and nearby regions, including Muslim religious institutions, schools, businesses, associations, and congregations. The Department created the Program following the September 11, 2001, attacks based on the mistaken and unconstitutional premise that Muslim religious identity is a legitimate criterion for selection of law enforcement surveillance targets, or that it is a permissible proxy for criminality, and that Muslims can therefore be subject to pervasive surveillance not visited upon any other religious group or the public at large, simply because of their religion. This Program reflects a policy, custom, usage and/or practice of the NYPD to target the Muslim community for surveillance solely on the basis of religion.

37. As part of this Program, the NYPD specifically and purposefully targets mosques, Muslim-owned businesses, Muslim Student Associations, and Muslim schools for surveillance based only upon the religious beliefs of their owners or members. The NYPD Program intentionally targets only the Muslim faith and does not undertake similar surveillance with respect to any other religious group. Thus, the Program perpetuates odious and unfounded stereotypes about Muslims, including Plaintiffs, and stigmatizes them as members of a disfavored community that is inherently dangerous and inferior.

38. The Department has focused, in particular, upon New Jersey Muslims as part of its Program. The Department has conducted surveillance of at least twenty mosques, fourteen restaurants, eleven retail stores, two grade schools and two Muslim Student Associations in New Jersey, in addition to an untold number of individuals who own, operate, and visit those establishments. Furthermore, the Department has created over twenty precinct-level maps of the City of Newark, noting the location of mosques and Muslim businesses and the ethnic composition of the Muslim community. As part of the Program, it has also created a series of reports documenting in detail the information obtained from its surveillance of New Jersey Muslim communities.

39. The Program uses a variety of methods to spy on Muslims. It has, among other measures, taken video and photographs at mosques, Muslim-owned businesses, and schools. It has sent undercover officers to those locations to engage in pretextual conversations to elicit information from proprietors and patrons. And it has planted informants in mosques, and monitored websites, listserves, and chat rooms. The Department does not conduct similar surveillance of houses of worship, businesses, and schools associated with other religions. For example, on information and belief, no other religious group is uniformly and categorically viewed as a legitimate target for investigation merely because of the actions of an exceedingly small fraction of people of the same faith who have violated the law.

40. In addition to targeting Muslims by focusing on mosques, Muslim-owned businesses, and other Muslim-associated organizations as subjects of surveillance, the Program also intentionally targets Muslims by using ethnicity as a proxy for faith.

41. As part of the Program, the Department has designated twenty-eight countries and “American Black Muslim” as “ancestries of interest.” The twenty-eight countries are: Afghanistan, Albania, Algeria, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Chechnya, Egypt, Guyana, India, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Jordan, Lebanon, Libya, Morocco, Pakistan, Palestine, Saudi Arabia, Somalia, Sudan, Syria, Tunisia, Turkey, U.A.E., Uzbekistan, Yemen, and Yugoslavia. Those twenty-eight countries constitute about 80% of the world’s Muslim population. All but five of the countries on the list are more than three-fourths Muslim. Of these five, all but two countries are majority Muslim and one of the remaining two countries is India, which alone is home to 11% of the world’s Muslims.

42. However, the Department does not surveil all people and establishments with “ancestries of interest,” but expressly chooses to exclude people and establishments with such “ancestries” if they are not Muslim. Thus, for example, the NYPD does not surveil Egyptians if they are Coptic Christians, Syrians if they are Jewish, or Albanians if they are Catholic or Orthodox Christian.

43. The NYPD's report analyzing Newark observes: "There appears to be a sizable and growing non-immigrant, African-American Muslim population." No analysis of non-Muslim African-Americans appears in the Newark report.

44. The NYPD's surveillance is not limited to those Muslims with "ancestries of interest." In its surveillance of Newark, the Department has observed that the largest immigrant communities in that city are from Portugal and Brazil, countries not found on its list of twenty-eight "ancestries." Nevertheless, the Department's Newark report examines these communities for the presence of Muslims: "No Muslim component within these [Portuguese and Brazilian] communities was identified, with the exception of one identified location being owned and operated by a Brazilian Muslim of Palestinian descent." No non-Muslim individuals or establishments from Newark's Portuguese or Brazilian immigrant communities are identified in the NYPD's Newark report. The Department's investigation, surveillance, and analysis are concerned only with Muslims. Religious affiliation is employed as the sole predicate for investigation pursuant to the Program.

NYPD's Surveillance Activities Against Muslims

45. The NYPD Program utilizes numerous forms of surveillance in its monitoring of Muslim communities, including its surveillance of Muslim communities in New Jersey. The NYPD Program does not undertake similar surveillance of non-Muslim communities. Despite its initial secrecy, public knowledge of the NYPD program to single out Muslims for surveillance has become widespread in New Jersey and elsewhere.

46. As part of the Program, NYPD officers snap pictures, take video, and collect license plate numbers of congregants as they arrive at mosques to pray, making records of those in attendance. They also mount surveillance cameras on light poles, aimed at mosques, for the purpose of round-the-clock surveillance. Officers can control the cameras with their computers and use the footage to help identify worshippers. The NYPD has not conducted similar surveillance at non-Muslim houses of worship.

47. The Department also utilizes informants and undercover officers, who identify and report upon, among other things, businesses owned or frequented by Muslims; which stores sell halal meat; the subject of conversations overheard at mosques; and where religious schools are located. For example:

a. The NYPD uses undercover officers called “rakers” to monitor daily life in neighborhoods it believes to be heavily Muslim. Rakers surveil locations such as bookstores, bars, cafes, and nightclubs. They do so not based upon evidence of wrongdoing, but because the Department believes it should surveil and investigate American Muslims comprehensively in a way that it does not other religious communities.

b. The NYPD also has informants called “mosque crawlers” who monitor sermons and conversations in mosques and report back to the NYPD. Mosque crawlers are used at mosques as part of a broader plan for blanket surveillance of Muslim communities. The Department has strived to have an informant inside every mosque within a 250-mile radius of New York City and has, in fact, prepared an analytical report on every mosque within 100 miles, including Plaintiff MFI and at least two of the members of CINJ. Upon information and belief, the NYPD's mosque crawlers have monitored thousands of prayer services in mosques, collecting detailed information about worshippers simply because they are Muslim, without evidence they engaged in any wrongdoing.

c. Rakers and mosque crawlers have monitored discussions in mosques about the controversy surrounding the publication of a Danish artist's cartoons of the Prophet Muhammad, the results of which were included in a February 2006 report. That report, for example, documents twenty-three conversations at twenty mosques. None of the information collected showed any indication of criminal activity. The NYPD prepared a similar report after an accidental plane crash in Manhattan in October 2006. Upon information and belief, the Department prepares many such reports targeting Muslims, none of which even allegedly involve any wrongdoing.

d. Using mosque crawlers, rakers, and other officers and agents, the NYPD has documented painstaking details of American Muslim life, including in New Jersey, and plaintiff institutions and businesses. For example, Department surveillance reports note the fact that flyers are posted in shops advertising for Quran tutoring; a picture of a mosque hangs in a grocery store; a restaurant serves “religious Muslims;” customers visit a Dunkin’ Donuts after Friday prayer; a restaurant is located near a particular mosque; employees or customers of establishments are observed wearing “traditional clothing;” Muslim prayer mats are hanging on the wall at an Indian restaurant; and a store posts a sign that it will be closed on Friday in observance of Friday prayer.

48. The NYPD Program has not utilized informants and undercover agents to undertake such focused or intensive surveillance of non-Muslim communities.

49. The NYPD also closely monitors the activities of Muslim Student Associations at colleges and universities in New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, and Pennsylvania. It places informants or undercover officers in all or virtually all MSAs, without any indication whatsoever of criminal activity or any connection whatsoever to wrongdoing.

50. NYPD officers monitor the web sites of Muslim student organizations, troll student chat rooms, and talk to students online. Undercover NYPD officers sometimes pose as students to attend MSA events. One officer, for example, went on a rafting trip with an MSA and monitored and recorded how often the student participants on the trip prayed, and that they discussed religious topics. Knowing that undercover NYPD officers are recording the topics of Muslims’ conversations and the frequency with which they pray reasonably causes Plaintiffs and other Muslims in the jurisdictions surveilled by the Department to chill their religious practices.

51. On a weekly basis, the Department prepares an MSA Report on schools, including reports on Rutgers New Brunswick and Rutgers Newark. Its reports include the names of professors, scholars, and students without any evidence that they engaged in wrongdoing.

52. The Department does not conduct similar blanket surveillance of the activities of Christian, Jewish, or any other religious student group.

53. To facilitate future surveillance of entire American Muslim communities, the NYPD has created maps indicating the locations of mosques, restaurants, retail establishments, and schools owned by or serving Muslims, as well as ethnic populations from heavily Muslim countries. The Department has over twenty such maps of Newark, New Jersey.

54. The NYPD has not compiled similar maps of non-Muslim communities.

55. The NYPD also inspects records of name changes and compiles databases of new Muslim converts who take Arabic names, as well as Muslims who take names that are perceived to be “Western.” The Department does not compile similar information for other kinds of name changes.

56. The NYPD’s surveillance of the Muslim community in New Jersey, including its surveillance of Plaintiffs, is extensive and sustained. For example, undercover NYPD officers participating in the Program operated a base of operations in an off-campus apartment near Rutgers New Brunswick. On information and belief, the NYPD Program in New Jersey, including its surveillance of Plaintiffs, is ongoing.

The NYPD Program Harms the Plaintiffs and the Muslim Community as a Whole

57. The NYPD's blanket surveillance of Muslims casts guilt on all people of that faith by suggesting that Muslims pose a special threat to public safety. As targets of the NYPD's discriminatory Program that endorses and perpetuates such false stereotypes, the Plaintiffs and other New Jersey Muslims have been gravely stigmatized and will continue to suffer significant harm as a group disfavored by the government.

58. The Department's Newark report analyzes more than forty "Locations of Concern," which include mosques, restaurants, retail establishments, and a school for grades one through four recognized by the New Jersey Department of Education. The report defines "Location of Concern" as, among other things, a "location that individuals may find co-conspirators for illegal actions" and a "location that has demonstrated a significant pattern of illegal activities." The report does not identify any "illegal activity" in respect to any of these locations. Rather, these establishments, which include Plaintiffs Unity halal meat store, All Body Shop Inside & Outside, and two of the mosques represented by the Council of Imams in New Jersey, were surveilled and are documented in the report only because they are Muslim-owned or -affiliated. The sole basis for the Department's stated belief that illegal activity occurred or is likely to occur is the religious identify of those surveilled. Nonetheless, the Department's use of such a description for mosques, businesses, and schools casts a dark shadow of suspicion on congregations, customers, lenders, children and parents – indeed, the community as a whole – gravely stigmatizing and otherwise having a significant deleterious impact upon them.

59. The NYPD causes similar damage in its report on the threat to New York City of a potential U.S. - Iran conflict. Among the “key findings” and “recommended actions,” included in the report are to “[e]xpend and focus intelligence collections at Shi'a mosques.” While the report observes that “the majority of Iranian nationals residing in the US are either Zoroastrian, Jewish, or Christian,” the report only targets Muslim institutions, without any justification. Moreover, the report’s focus on Shi’a Muslim mosques sweeps up vast numbers of individuals with no connection to Iran or to any threat arising from a potential conflict between the United States and Iran. Indeed, the report observes that the Shi’a Muslim community includes many individuals of Iraqi, Lebanese and Pakistani descent. Yet the report targets the Shi’a Muslim community as an undifferentiated whole. The report therefore unmistakably targets Muslim institutions simply because they are Muslim and unconstitutionally deploys religious affiliation as a criterion for selection of law enforcement surveillance targets, or as a proxy for criminality.

60. The U.S – Iran report describes organizations believed to pose serious threats to New York City, such as Hezbollah and Hamas, supporters of those organizations and their locations, followed by a list of “Other Shi'a Locations in the vicinity of NYC.” This list of twelve Shi’a Muslim locations includes six in New Jersey, including Plaintiff MFI and its Masjid-e-Ali mosque, as well as three additional mosques attended by Plaintiff Hassan (Astaana-e-Zehra, Mehfile Shahe Khorasan, and Imam-e-Zamana Foundation of North America). The clear implication of the report is that Shi'a mosques pose a threat to public safety unlike other establishments and places of worship. But under the NYPD's Program the only reason that these mosques, including Plaintiff MFI and those attended by Hassan, were included in the report is that they are affiliated with Shi'a Islam, not because of any wrongdoing, any affiliation with designated organizations such as Hamas or Hezbollah, or any other legitimate reason.

61. The harm the NYPD inflicts on Plaintiffs and Muslim communities results not just from the surveillance, and from the stigma of being targets of discrimination, but also from the public statements that defendant New York City officials make in support of the surveillance. These statements have acknowledged the existence of the NYPD program, describing it as focused on "threats" and as an attempt to document the "likely whereabouts of terrorists." By singling out American Muslims for unequal treatment and as "threats," government officials have sent a signal that they are less worthy participants in the political community.

62. Because the NYPD Program did not limit itself to threats or terrorists but rather targeted the Muslim community as a whole, such statements suggest that all Muslim establishments are dangerous or likely to harbor terrorists, thereby engendering suspicion and distrust of Muslim individuals and Muslim establishments, including Plaintiffs, affecting people's livelihoods, damaging the fabric of Muslim communities and the broader society within which Muslims live, and inviting prejudice and discrimination against Plaintiffs and other Muslim individuals.

63. On information and belief, the NYPD Program in New Jersey, including broad surveillance of mosques, Muslim businesses and MSAs and, in particular surveillance of Plaintiffs, is ongoing.

64. As part of the Program, NYPD officers frequently go back to surveillance locations to make sure they have not changed, and updating their information is part of their duties and responsibilities. Indeed, New York City officials have made clear that they believe the NYPD's targeting of Muslims for surveillance on the basis of their religion is appropriate and will continue. Discussing the surveillance, Mayor Bloomberg has stated publicly, "We're doing the right thing. We will continue to do the right thing." Commissioner Kelly has said, "We're going to continue to do what we have to do to protect the city." Under our Constitution, however, what the NYPD may not do is continue to target American Muslims for investigation and pervasive surveillance simply because they are Muslim.

65. The Mayor and Police Commissioner have justified this sweeping, discriminatory policy by repeatedly claiming that it is necessary to protect the public's safety. These public officials' statements conflate religion with a security risk and falsely suggest that Muslims alone present a unique law enforcement threat. Such official proclamations, made exclusively in reference to the Muslim community, stigmatize Plaintiffs and the Muslim community in New Jersey, and invite additional prejudice and discrimination against them.

CLAIMS FOR RELIEF

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION

VIOLATIONS OF THE FOURTEENTH AMENDMENT TO THE U.S. CONSTITUTION

66. Plaintiffs repeat and reallege the foregoing paragraphs as if the same were fully set forth at length herein.

67. The Defendant's Program impermissibly and intentionally discriminates against Plaintiffs because of their religion. As a direct and proximate result of the acts of the Defendant and its agents, the Plaintiffs have therefore been deprived of their rights under the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution and 42 U.S.C. § 1983.

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION

VIOLATIONS OF THE FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE U.S. CONSTITUTION

68. Plaintiffs repeat and reallege the foregoing paragraphs as if the same were fully set forth at length herein.

69. The Defendant's Program is neither neutral with respect to religion, nor of general applicability. The Program instead singles out Plaintiffs' religion for disfavor and intentionally denigrates Islam. As a direct and proximate result of the acts of the Defendant and its agents, the Plaintiffs have therefore been deprived of their rights under the Free Exercise Clause and the Establishment Clause of the First Amendment to the United States Constitution and 42 U.S.C. § 1983.

THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION
EXPUNGEMENT ACTION AT COMMON LAW

70. Plaintiffs repeat and reallege the foregoing paragraphs as if the same were fully set forth at length herein.

71. Government entities may not maintain records where the harm to the Plaintiffs caused by the existence of records outweighs the utility of their continued maintenance, especially where the information contained in the records was compiled by unlawful methods.

72. Defendants' have compiled records identifying mosques represented by Plaintiffs CINJ and MFI, the Rutgers Newark and Rutgers New Brunswick MSA chapters, represented by Plaintiff MSA National, Plaintiff Unity Beef Sausage Company, and Plaintiff All Body Shop Inside & Outside as targets of surveillance and investigation. Upon information and belief, the NYPD also maintains records identifying Plaintiffs Hassan, Mohammed, Doe, Tahir, Abdur-Rahim, and Abdullah as targets of surveillance or investigation. These records are likely to command attention from law enforcement officials, other agencies of government, and the public at large, to the detriment of the Plaintiffs.

73. Maintenance of these records, which are the fruits of the Defendant's unconstitutional actions and which falsely identify the Plaintiffs as linked to the threat of terrorism, creates harms that significantly outweigh their utility, if any.

PRAYER FOR RELIEF

WHEREFORE the Plaintiffs respectfully request that the Court:

(a) Declare that the Defendant's actions violate the Plaintiffs' rights under the First and Fourteenth Amendments of the United States Constitution;

(b) Enjoin further violations of the Plaintiffs' constitutional rights, including but not limited to an injunction that requires the Defendant to refrain from targeting Plaintiffs for surveillance on the basis of religion;

(c) Order the expungement of all records of Plaintiffs made pursuant to past unlawful spying;

(d) Award Compensatory Damages to those Plaintiffs who have suffered economic harm;

(e) Award Nominal Damages for the harms suffered by Plaintiffs who are not awarded compensatory damages;

- (f) Award attorney's fees and costs associated with this action; and
- (g) Award any further relief as is just and proper and any other relief as allowed by law.

Office of the Attorney General Takes Steps to Address Out-of-State Law Enforcement Activity in New Jersey Following Fact-Finding Review

View Directive

TRENTON -- Attorney General Jeffrey S. Chiesa announced today that his office has taken steps to improve law enforcement coordination and address concerns expressed by Muslim community leaders following a three-month fact-finding review of intelligence-gathering conducted by the New York Police Department (NYPD) in New Jersey. The fact-finding review, which is on-going, has revealed no evidence to date that NYPD's activities in the state violated New Jersey civil or criminal laws.

Among the steps taken by the Office of the Attorney General are the following:

- An agreement has been reached to strengthen the lines of communication with NYPD concerning investigative activities in New Jersey related to counter-terrorism. New Jersey law enforcement officials will meet with NYPD on a regular basis to exchange information concerning counter-terrorism intelligence and operations.
- Effective immediately, by virtue of an Attorney General's Directive issued today, New Jersey law enforcement agencies have formalized notification protocols to follow when they learn of law enforcement activity being conducted by out-of-state police agencies within their jurisdictions. For counter-terrorism-related matters, the Directive establishes reporting protocols to designated personnel at the New Jersey State Police Counter-Terrorism Bureau and the Office of Homeland Security and Preparedness, for further coordination with the Joint Terrorism Task Force headed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.
- The Attorney General's Office will establish a Muslim outreach committee in order to enhance communication and encourage a greater understanding regarding issues of importance to both law enforcement and the Muslim community.

The fact-finding review conducted by the Office of the Attorney General included gathering information from individuals within the ranks of law enforcement in New Jersey, New York, and other states, as well as from civilians within the Muslim and other communities in New Jersey. The Office of the Attorney General will continue to receive and assess information relevant to the conduct at issue and cooperate with any other state or federal law enforcement agencies engaged in reviewing those matters.

Attorney General Chiesa announced the results of the fact-finding review to date after meeting earlier today with leaders from New Jersey's Muslim community at the Hughes Justice Complex in Trenton. The Attorney General explained that while, as a routine matter, law enforcement in New Jersey effectively coordinates operations to de-conflict and ensure operational safety with out-of-state law enforcement agencies, the Directive issued today will bring consistency to those reporting mechanisms based on the nature and scope of the underlying law enforcement activity. He also indicated that the Directive, as well as regular meetings with the NYPD, will enable better, and more immediate, coordination of information for purposes of conducting counter-terrorism operations.

Recognizing the unique challenges of counter-terrorism intelligence gathering and investigations, while understanding the need to safeguard the public's confidence in law enforcement's respect for fundamental civil liberties, Attorney General Chiesa said, "We remain committed to striking the appropriate balance of ensuring the safety of our citizens through vigilance in fighting terrorism, while not undermining the public's confidence in how we approach that mission."

Temperatures Rise Over Cartoons Mocking Muhammad

By CRAIG S. SMITH and IAN FISHER: Craig S. Smith reported from Paris for this article, and Ian Fisher from Gaza. Published: February 3, 2006

An international dispute over European newspaper cartoons deemed blasphemous by some Muslims gained momentum on Thursday when gunmen threatened the European Union offices in Gaza and more European papers pointedly published the drawings as an affirmation of freedom of speech.

In Gaza, masked gunmen swarmed the European Union offices on Thursday to protest the cartoons, and there were threats to foreigners from European countries where the cartoons have been reprinted. The gunmen stayed about 45 minutes.

A newly elected legislator from Hamas, the radical Islamic group that swept the Palestinian elections last week, said large rallies were planned in Gaza in the next few days to protest the cartoons, which depict the Prophet Muhammad in an unflattering light. Merely publishing the image of Muhammad is regarded as blasphemous by many Muslims.

"We are angry -- very, very, very angry," said the legislator, Jamila al-Shanty. "No one can say a bad word about our prophet."

The conflict is the latest manifestation of growing tensions between Europe and the Muslim world as the Continent struggles to absorb a fast-expanding Muslim population whose customs and values are often at odds with Europe's secular societies. Islam is Europe's fastest growing religion and is now the second largest religion in most European countries. Racial and religious discrimination against Muslims in Europe's weakest economies adds to the strains.

The trouble began in September in Denmark, when the daily Jyllands-Posten published 12 cartoons lampooning intolerance among Muslims and links to terrorism. A Norwegian magazine published the cartoons again last month, and the issue erupted this week after diplomatic efforts failed to resolve demands by several angry Arab countries that the publications be punished.

The cartoons include one depicting Muhammad with a bomb in place of a turban on his head and another showing him on a cloud in heaven telling an approaching line of smoking suicide bombers, "Stop, stop, we ran out of virgins!"

They have since been reprinted in France, Germany, Italy, Switzerland, Spain and Hungary. The BBC broadcast them on Thursday.

[On Friday, 300 militant Indonesian Muslims went on a rampage inside the lobby of the Jakarta building housing the Danish Embassy, unable to get past security to the embassy on the 25th floor, Reuters reported. They tossed rotten eggs and made fiery speeches calling on their government to sever diplomatic ties with Denmark and evict its ambassador. The protesters dispersed after an hour. There were no arrests.]

Most European commentators concede that the cartoons were in poor taste but argue that conservative Muslims must learn to accept Western standards of free speech and the pluralism that those standards protect.

Several accused Muslims of a double standard, noting that media in several Arab countries continue to broadcast or publish references to "The Protocols of the Elders of Zion," a notorious early 20th-century anti-Semitic hoax that presented itself as the Jews' master plan to rule the world.

Many Muslims say the Danish cartoons reinforce a dangerous confusion between Islam and the Islamist terrorism that nearly all Muslims abhor. Dalil Boubakeur, head of France's Muslim Council, called the caricatures a new sign of Europe's growing "Islamophobia."

Saudi Arabia and Syria recalled their ambassadors from Denmark, while the Danish government summoned other foreign envoys in Copenhagen to talks on Friday over the issue, having already explained that it does not control the press.

Jyllands-Posten has received two bomb threats in the past few days, despite having apologized for any hurt feelings about the drawings.

Thursday morning, about a dozen gunmen appeared at the European Union offices in Gaza, firing automatic weapons and spray-painting a warning on the outside gate. The men handed out a pamphlet warning Denmark, Norway and France that they had 48 hours to apologize.

The office, staffed then only by Palestinians, reportedly received a warning that the gunmen were coming, and was quickly closed.

In Nablus, on the West Bank, two masked gunmen kidnapped a German from a hotel, thinking he was French or Danish, Agence France-Presse reported. They turned him over to the police once they realized their mistake.

Leaders of Fatah and Hamas said they did not endorse harming any foreigners in Gaza. All the same, the threat emptied hotels there of Europeans, most of them journalists.

France Soir, the only French daily to reprint the cartoons, fired its managing editor late Wednesday as "a strong sign of respect for the beliefs and intimate convictions of every individual," according to a statement from its owner, Raymond Lakah, an Egyptian-born French businessman.

In an editorial defending its decision to publish the cartoons, France Soir asked Thursday what would remain of "the freedom to think, speak, even to come and go," if society adhered to all of the prohibitions of the world's various religions. The result, the newspaper said, would be "the Iran of the mullahs, for example."

Afghanistan's president, Hamid Karzai, issued a statement condemning "in the strongest terms" France Soir's publication of the cartoons. "Any insult to the holy prophet (peace be upon him) is an insult to more than one billion Muslims," his statement read.

On Thursday, France's embassy in Algeria, a former colony, issued a statement condemning the publication, saying the French government was "deeply attached to the spirit of tolerance and to respect of religious belief, as we are to the principle of freedom of the press."

"In this light, France condemns all those who hurt individuals in their beliefs or religious convictions," the statement read.

Still, Europeans showed no signs of backing down. Le Monde ran a sketch of a man, presumably Muhammad, made of sentences reading, "I must not draw Muhammad."

Italian Quits Over Cartoons; 15 Die in Nigeria

By IAN FISHER

TURIN, Italy, Feb. 18 — A day after at least 11 people were killed in Libya amid continuing violence over the Danish cartoons of the Prophet Muhammad, an Italian government minister resigned Saturday for wearing a T-shirt printed with the cartoons.

[In Nigeria, Muslims protesting the cartoons attacked Christians and burned churches on Saturday, killing at least 15 people in the deadliest confrontation yet in the whirlwind of Muslim anger over the drawings, The Associated Press reported.]

The protesters in Libya, angry over the minister's T-shirt, had stormed an Italian Consulate in Benghazi on Friday and were fired on by Libyan soldiers. Here in Italy, critics of Roberto Calderoli, the reforms minister who showed off his T-shirt on television earlier this week, blamed him for the violence — and even his own political allies, including Prime Minister Silvio Berlusconi, demanded his resignation.

In London, some 10,000 demonstrators marched in what was the largest of several protests there so far. And in India, a politician offered a reward for the deaths of the cartoonists.

[Mobs of Muslim protesters swarm through Maiduguri, the capital of Borno State in northeastern Nigeria, with machetes, sticks and iron rods, The A.P. said. One group threw a tire around a man, poured gas on him and set him ablaze.

[Thousands of rioters burned 15 churches in a three-hour rampage before troops and police reinforcements restored order, said a Nigerian police spokesman, Haz Iwendu. Security forces arrested dozens of people, he said.

[Chima Ezeoke, a Christian Maiduguri resident, said protesters attacked and looted shops owned by minority Christians, most of them with origins in the country's south. Witnesses said three children and a priest were among those killed.

[Nigeria, with a population of more than 130 million, is roughly divided between a predominantly Muslim north and a mainly Christian south.

[Thousands of people have died in that West African country since 2000 in religious violence fueled by the adoption of the strict Islamic legal code by a dozen states in the north, seen by most Christians as a move to impose religious hegemony on non-Muslims.]

The Italian minister, Mr. Calderoli, quit under protest, warning against an Islamic "attack on the West."

"In these last days I expressed in my way solidarity with all those who have been struck by the blind violence of religious fanaticism," he said in a statement that referred to an Italian priest killed this month in Turkey by a Muslim who was reportedly angry over the cartoons. "But it was never my intention to offend the Muslim religion nor to be the pretext for the violence of yesterday," he said.

With the dispute over Mr. Calderoli's shirt, the violence over the cartoons breached Italy's domestic politics. Mr. Calderoli belongs to a far-right party, the Northern League, that is small but influential. It is a key member of Mr. Berlusconi's center-right ruling coalition.

Mr. Berlusconi and the Libyan leader Muammar el-Qaddafi discussed the demonstration by telephone, with both agreeing that it should not have "negative repercussions" on their relationship.

In Libya, the riots also claimed a political casualty. Libya's interior minister was suspended for "an excessive use of force" against the protesters there, The Associated Press reported. At least 11 people were killed in violence there on Friday.

In central London, thousands of Muslims from across Britain chanted "Allah-u akbar" ("God is great" in Arabic) and waved placards in protest of the publication of the cartoons in Danish and other European newspapers. The cartoons were shown briefly on the BBC but have not been published by British newspapers.

The protest, which gathered under Nelson's Column in Trafalgar Square, drew at least 10,000 protesters, the police said, making it the biggest of three demonstrations in London in three weeks. Referring to the cartoons, one demonstrator, Mohamed Abdul Kabir, a 23-year-old psychology student from Accrington in the northwest England, said: "It has gone beyond satire; it has gone to insult. Who defines the line where freedom stops?"

In India, a politician in the nation's largest state has offered an $11 million reward for the killing of any of the Danish cartoonists "who dared to make the caricature of the Prophet," according to Indian news media reports published Saturday. The state government official, Haji Yaqoob Quereshi, made the announcement at a rally in the north Indian town of Meerut after Friday Prayer.

State officials said he would not face charges because he was articulating his personal opinion. Demonstrations have broken out during the past several days in a number of Indian cities with large Muslim populations.

Alan Cowell contributed reporting from London for this article, and Somini Sengupta from Goa, India.

A KFC restaurant was among several that demonstrators burned Tuesday in Lahore, Pakistan.

Violence flared in two cities as demonstrators rampaged through Islamabad, the capital, and Lahore in the east, vandalizing property, burning government buildings and attacking Western businesses. In Lahore, guards at a bank shot dead two people and the police struggled to control thousands of demonstrators.

Protests have continued here for weeks over cartoons published last year in a Danish newspaper that have stirred Muslims' emotions around the world. Until Tuesday, demonstrations here had been relatively peaceful.

the diplomatic enclave where most Western embassies are situated. The protesters, mostly teenage students, wielded sticks and clashed with the police while chanting slogans against Denmark and the president of Pakistan, Gen. Pervez Musharraf.

The police used tear gas to disperse the students, who threw stones and tore down portraits of General Musharraf. Interior Minister Aftab Ahmed Khan Sherpao said the protesters had no leader and were difficult to control. No major damage to Western embassies was reported.

Later, some members of Parliament staged a protest walk from Parliament to the main entrance of the diplomatic enclave.

In Lahore, capital of Punjab Province, demonstrators burned two banks and McDonald's, Pizza Hut and KFC restaurants, and set part of the provincial parliament building afire. More than 200 cars were damaged and dozens of stores were ransacked.

News channels showed smoke billowing from damaged buildings and stick-wielding demonstrators smashing windows and clashing with the police. Protesters were seen looting an office of Telenor, a Norwegian cellphone company, and running off with computers and mobile phone accessories.

Officials said they sympathized with the protesters' emotions but did not condone the violence.

"What message are we giving out by damaging our own?" the chief minister of Punjab, Chaudhary Pervez Elahi, told a television channel. Mr. Elahi said demonstrations were allowed to be held in a peaceful manner, but had been hijacked by miscreants.

As for the shooting of protesters in Lahore, Mr. Elahi said, "Bank authorities allege that the protestors were trying to force their way into the bank."

Although the cartoons have appeared in European newspapers, demonstrators vented their anger over the United States, as well. Geo, a television channel, showed reports of a group of protesters chanting, "Bush dog!" and "Down with Bush!" before smashing vehicles and stores. Protesters across Pakistan have demanded that the government sever ties with the countries where the cartoons have appeared and expel the Danish and Norwegian envoys.

Cartoons of Prophet Met With Outrage

Depictions of Muhammad in Scandinavian Papers Provoke Anger, Protest Across Muslim World

By John Ward Anderson
Washington Post Foreign Service
Tuesday, January 31, 2006

PARIS, Jan. 30 -- Cartoons in Danish and Norwegian newspapers depicting the prophet Muhammad in unflattering poses, including one in which he is portrayed as an apparent terrorist with a bomb in his turban, have triggered outrage among Muslims across the Middle East, sparking protests, economic boycotts and warnings of possible retaliation against the people, companies and countries involved.

The cartoons were published in September in a conservative, mass-circulation Danish daily, Jyllands-Posten, and were reprinted three weeks ago in Magazinet, a small evangelical Christian newspaper in Norway. But the reaction has been widespread, and fallout over the images reached new levels Monday, with the European Union backing Denmark in the dispute and warning that a boycott of Danish products -- already being felt by some companies -- would violate World Trade Organization rules.

Saudi Arabia has recalled its ambassador from Denmark and Libya has closed its embassy in Copenhagen, the Danish capital. Kuwait called the cartoons "despicable racism." Iran's foreign minister termed them "ridiculous and revolting."

The cartoons included one of the prophet as a crazed, knife-wielding Bedouin and another of him at the gates of heaven telling suicide bombers: "Stop. Stop. We have run out of virgins!" -- a reference to the belief of some Muslim extremists that male suicide bombers are rewarded in heaven with 72 virgins.

Islamic critics charged that the cartoons were a deliberate provocation and insult to their religion designed to incite hatred and polarize people of different faiths. Defenders of the newspapers and artists said the 12 published cartoons simply were intended to highlight Islam's intolerance.

The controversy has pitted two newspapers championing what they say is the cause of free speech against Islam's prohibition of any artistic depiction of the prophet Muhammad, which is considered blasphemous, no matter how benign. The clash is being fueled by a wave of anti-immigrant sentiment in staunchly secular Denmark, where many express frustration that the country's 200,000 Muslim immigrants are resisting assimilation into Danish society.

"There's widespread skepticism toward immigration and integration efforts" because of a popular belief that "immigrants are here to take advantage of the Danish system," said Ulf Hedetoft, a political scientist at Aalborg University and director of Denmark's Academy for Migration Studies.

"People are inclined to see Islam and political extremism as two sides of the same coin," he said.

In a statement, the 57-nation Organization of the Islamic Conference has condemned "the printing of blasphemous and insulting caricatures of the Prophet Mohammed," saying it "falls into the trap set up by fundamentalists and fosters acts of revenge." Protesters across the Muslim world have burned Norwegian and Danish flags and issued sharp denunciations.

The controversy began in September, after an author in Denmark complained that he could not find an artist willing, under his own name, to illustrate a book about the prophet's life.

In response, Jyllands-Posten, the conservative daily, ran 12 cartoons by various staff artists depicting Muhammad. The paper explained that the project was meant to gauge the public's response.

In the Islamic world, it was swift and furious, but in Denmark, the majority backed the paper's right to print the cartoons. A recent poll showed that 62 percent of those surveyed said the paper should not apologize.

The tumult passed, but was reignited even more furiously when Magazinet, the evangelical Christian paper in Norway, reprinted the cartoons. The editor, Vebjoern Selbekk, wrote that he was "sick of the ongoing hidden erosion of the freedom of expression." He told the Reuters news agency that he had received 15 death threats and more than 1,000 hate letters.

The Danish Foreign Ministry late Sunday issued a statement warning its citizens in nine Middle Eastern countries and the Palestinian territories to "show extra vigilance" because of the "strong negative feelings" sparked by the uproar.

Meanwhile, a Denmark-based dairy group, Arla Foods -- which according to a statement on its Web site sells about $421 million annually in the Middle East and has about 1,000 employees there -- said that sales had come to a "standstill" across the region.

The newspapers have issued explanations but have couched their apologies. "We are sorry if Muslims have been offended," Jyllands' editor in chief, Carsten Juste, told the Associated Press, adding that the newspapers actions were "within the constitution, the Danish penal code and international convention. . . . It is not a dictatorship like Saudi Arabia that is going to dictate our editorial line here in Denmark."

Norway described the cartoons as "unfortunate and deplorable." Danish Prime Minister Anders Fogh Rasmussen has refused to apologize. In a recent speech, without mentioning the controversy, he denounced "any expression, action of indication that attempts to demonize groups of people on the basis of the religion or ethnic background." But he added that "freedom of speech is absolute. It is not negotiable."

"The question here is how far do you show sensitivity and self-control over issues without falling into self-censorship," said Medhi Mozaffari, a professor at Aarhus University in Denmark, who defended his government's stance not to apologize.

"It's unthinkable that the prime minister would make an apology," he said. "This is Islamists putting democracies on trial to see how far they can be pressured."
